

Monday, February 02, 2009

To whom it may concern,

Barry Scott was a fantastic performer. He challenged us to get an eye exam and to understand the cultural shift that is happening in America. He invoked images from imaginations with his presentation of the famous "I Have a Dream" speech by Martin Luther King. And he reminded us just how far we have gotten with the "Yes We Can" speech by President Obama.

Barry is a skilled performer. But more than that he challenged the near capacity audience to reflect. He wanted this to be more than a performance of great speeches but a meaningful experience. How did we feel? What did we think? What do we know? How are our eyes? What is our vision?

Sincerely,

Jeff Venekamp

Director of Student Activities

Augustana College